Considerations for the week

Today's text is a thank-you note written by Paul. Consider several reasons why the Holy Spirit might have inspired him to do this.

Thanks are given to a varied group of team members. What does this say about the effect of the gospel and the practicalities of spreading the good news of Christ?

We minister together . . . and, as we do, friendships are formed and strengthened. How does shared ministry do this?

Explore what happens in us when we nourish ministry-based friendships.

This thank-you note gives specific messages for specific people, from Paul and God. And there are specific messages for each of us as well. What is God saying to you through this passage?

Whose life and ministry has benefitted you?

Before you leave the building today, be sure to thank someone for something! And again tomorrow and the next day, too!

Please use these considerations for personal reflection, small group discussions, and with friends and family.

Two are better than one, because they have a good reward for their toil. For if they fall, one will lift up his fellow. But woe to him who is alone when he falls and has not another to lift him up! Again, if two lie together, they keep warm, but how can one keep warm alone? And though a man might prevail against one who is alone, two will withstand him — a threefold cord is not quickly broken.
– Ecclesiastes 4:9-12, ESV

VBS Our Vacation Bible School begins tomorrow, as may be obvious by the many fantastic preparations around the church. We will welcome a host of children and pray that each will listen as the Holy Spirit ministers in and through them and their adult leaders.

CCSC volunteers are needed to help with back to school.
